Businesses destroyed by fire

Phil Jensen & Judy Reimche

Peninsula News Review

Nam and Ngoc Le, owners of Queen's Pay-Less, saw years of effort go up in smoke last week when their store was gutted in an early morning fire. They lost all their stock — a loss which could run as high as $100,000 — then they discovered that it wasn't even insured.

Ngoc explained that she and her husband had decided to change from a Toronto insurance company to a local one. But after letting the old policy lapse, they apparently forgot to finalize the new agreement. "They say they sent me a reminder, but I cannot remember," Ngoc said. "I don't know what to do."

The Resthaven Drive landmark caught fire early on Thursday, April 12. Captain Jim Tweedhope of the Sidney Fire Department said they received a call to the location about 3:15 a.m. The blaze caused serious damage to the building, which also housed Sky-High Pizza and Highlands Fish and Chips. Tweedhope wouldn't speculate about the cause of the fire, but stated that the RCMP are conducting an investigation.

"Usually when it's a commercial business, you look at all the avenues," he said.

Ngoc said that they want to make whatever repairs are needed, and start over again. She's called the bank to ask about a loan, but hasn't gotten an answer yet. "I have no idea ...," she said. "I hope the bank can help me a little bit. I'd love to open the business again."

Murray and Jeanette Elsom, owners of Highland Fish and Chips, were insured, but still suffered losses.

"All of our stock — 100 pounds of halibut, 125 pounds of cod, 600 pounds of potatoes — everything, right down to the bottles of ketchup, have to be thrown out," said Jeanette the day of the fire.

The couple had just finished renovating their premises, and were excited about their business prospects in the coming months. Now, their re-opening date will depend on several factors, such as when they can get power restored to the building.

The couple were already putting tentative plans in motion that day, but admitted the full impact of the fire, and of everyone's losses, hadn't really hit them yet. One thing that had already

Just a little off the top ...

If ever Kayleigh Wright felt the need to get even with her father for any reason, she got her chance last Wednesday. She was in charge of the shears, shaving her Dad's head at Bayside middle school during their fund-raiser. It was a poignant moment for her and her Dad, Frank Wright, as the fund-raiser was on behalf of Kayleigh, who was lately diagnosed with leukemia.

Hair today, gone tomorrow

Peninsula News Review

Sometimes, bad things happen to good people. But the bad can make the good be even better when it helps others show their care.

That's what happened last Wednesday when approximately 700 students jammed into the Bayside middle school cafeteria to show their support for classmate Kayleigh Wright. Her home room teacher, Daniel Bedard, explained, "Kayleigh was diagnosed with leukemia about two months ago and [we wanted to help]."

Bedard and his class decided the best thing to do was raise money to help with the expense of Kayleigh's frequent trips to Vancouver for chemotherapy. Holding a head-shaving event at the school seemed like a good way to do it.

"We're touched and overwhelmed by the school's support," said Kayleigh's father, Frank Wright. "You take the bad news on the chin and pull together as a family. But that doesn't bring the tears. It's acts of kindness like this that bring the emotions to the surface."

Wright said that his daughter has had some pretty rough times, and has lost all her hair

Fund started for Le family

Judy Reimche

Peninsula News Review

Maureen Bower of Sidney is investigating the possibility of starting a fund for Nam and Ngoc Le, owners of Queen's Pay-Less.

"I just felt very badly about their situation and I wanted to do something for them," she said. She baked chocolate chip cookies and sold them to her neighbours to raise a bit of cash. "Many people just wanted to donate," she said, "so I'm looking into setting up a fund at one of the local banks."

She is interested in finding out if anyone else has started a fund, or would like to work with her. If so, please call the NEWS REVIEW at 656-1151.

Water Tip of the Week

Instead of boiling water in a kettle every time you want a cuppa, fill a thermos flask at the beginning of the day and use when needed.

helped was the outpouring of condolences from the community.

"People have been coming by to tell us how sorry they are, and that they hope we'll be back in business soon. That helps," said Jeanette.

Police say two vehicles were seen at the premises that night. The occupants forced entry into the store and there is evidence a fire was deliberately set. If anyone saw a dark-coloured pickup truck with a canopy or a smaller dark-coloured compact car in the area, police would be interested in hearing that information.

Any information pertaining to activity in the area that night should be reported to Corporal David Hodgson, General Investigation Section, 656-3931.

from the chemotherapy. He had his own head shaved earlier to support her. "It's a strange feeling when you lose your hair," Wright said. "It's a way we can give emotional support to [the victim]. They feel that they stand out and when others stand out with them, they're not so alone."

Thirty-two students and teacher Bedard stood out with Kayleigh by having their heads shaved at the noon hour event. Her father, and her brother, Connor, a Grade 6 Bay-side student, also had their heads shaved. In addition to emotional support the students at Bayside raised more than $5000 to help Kayleigh.

Senanus water issue runs deep, but remains muddled

Laura Lavin

Peninsula News Review

Central Saanich City Council dedicated more than an hour of the Water and Waste Management Committee's time to discuss the Senanus water quality and supply issue.

The discussions were mainly around all the correspondence that has been received on that issue over the last three and a half months. Earlier in the year, council decided to refer the letters to a future meeting of the Water and Waste Management Committee to save lengthy weekly discussions on the issue.

The committee dealt with nine pieces of correspondence, four of which were from the Central Saanich West Voters Association, and three from Cox, Taylor barristers and solicitors for L. John Alexander. Frank Towler, president of the Central Saanich West Voters Association, spoke to their letters reiterating the group's concerns about the quality and quantity of their water supply, insisting that council move the motion that was suggested in one of the Cox, Taylor letters that asked, "that the District of Central Saanich immediately apply for a Federal Provincial infrastructure grant for the purposes of extending municipal water service to Senanus Drive, and that the District proceed simultaneously to conduct the necessary petition to gain the required approval from the residents in the specified area that will be served."

Mayor Wayne Hunter wanted to know if the suggested motion was to be prepared by city staff and circulated by Senanus residents, and if it was to be paid for by the municipality. Harcombe answered that it was unclear as Alexander was not in attendance to clarify his request.

The committee then heard from Peter Kittredge on the Water Advisory Task Force's letter regarding the Giles Report, a study commissioned by the Central Saanich West Voters Association in October of 2000. Kittredge reiterated, amidst a cacophony of jeering, catcalls and interruptions by a small group of Senanus residents, that the Task force majority advised against a pipeline, that the problem is an aesthetic one, and that tests have not confirmed health problems.

Hunter stated, "The reason I struggle more with this is because of Shaun Peck, Deputy Provincial Health Officer, and [Richard] Stanwick, Medical Health Officer of the Capital Health Region, comments as to the [need for] immediate improvements to the CRD water system. Clear across Canada, healthy water is a big issue on the agenda. I would like to refer this to Dr. Stanwick for his comments."

Councillor Jack Mar posed the question: "Is this a health issue or not? Either it is or it isn't. I suggest we send the in-

Time is of the Essence

... we all want more of it. In a busy world, there is little time to do the things that ensure a long and healthy life.

Many people experience low energy, indigestion and irregular bowel

you may be older on the inside

When the glass in the

A native plaque, carved

a hit and run motor vehicle accident on the Payless gas station on Mt. Newton X Rd.
The vehicle is described as a black Monte Carlo with rear windows and should have damage to the rear bumper. The driver is described as a six-foot tall male with a slim build, approximately 18 to 19 years old, short black hair, wearing a leather jacket and lots of gold jewelry. The Central Saanich Police are requesting assistance from the public in locating this vehicle and driver.

POLICE BRIEFS

forward so that residents can decide if that is what they want. And to have the staff prepare a survey at their [councillors] cost.

Councillors Allison Habbirk and Mar questioned the size of the pipeline, and along with councillor Diane Moen wanted an indication of what members of the Tsartlip First Nation had to say about the West Saanich Road option.

"These are big questions
we want answers for before we go down that road ... or that right of way, should we say?" said Moen.

City Clerk Administrator
Gary Nelson told council that there has already been some work done on the possibility of the West Saanich Road route, although there has been no consultation with the Tsartlip First Nation Band at this point.

Councillors Moen and Habbirk both brought up the point that former Clerk Administrator Al Mackey had stated that the West Saanich Rd. route was not an option. "For the record, Mr. Mackey stated it was not an option. I did not imagine those conversations," said Habbirk.

Moen, Habbirk and Michele Haddon all agreed that they would not support a grant application at this point. Mar stated, "Why not support a grant when it's out there to use? We've been elected to help our constituents, and we can help them get water and improve their situation. If we don't apply [for an infrastructure grant] some other community will get it, when it could help our community."

Council was informed three weeks ago that the Green Municipal Fund
Council did not recommend Central Saanich's application for funding because the GMI's peer review committee saw the proposed study as not sufficiently addressing issues of regulations that deal with wastewater management. They also had concerns as to whether the project would be implemented due to an absence of monetary funding from the District as a contribution to the proposed study.

Councillors felt that they had two strikes against them as they are not a member of the Federation of Canadian Municipalities and that they had put no money towards the proposed study.

Habbirk added, "I can't support this motion. The Bradbury report [done by the CHR in March of 1999] was full of inaccuracies and poor data. It was abysmal and an embarrassment to the CHR. The Mayor was critical when the CHR passed judgement on the septic problem without even visiting the site. Their input on the topic is an embarrassment."

Hunter countered, "Stan-wick is not an employee that has to take direction from the district. He has his own [regulations], he will give his best professional opinion on the issue."

Hunter's motion was defeated, with councillors
Haddon, Habbirk and Moen
voting no. Christopher Graham was absent from the discussion due to a conflict of interest, as he is a resident of the subject area.

Shayla Brown leads the Procession of the Cross from Peace Lutheran Church on Good Friday. Shayla shows her pride in being able to take her turn for such a feature role as the carrying of the Cross on this particularly solemn occasion. The procession is an annual event held by the churches across the Peninsula each Easter season, to mark this most holy of festivals for the Christian church. At the culmination of the walk with the Cross, congregants met with literally hundreds of others for the special Good Friday ecumenical service, held this year at Panorama Recreation Centre. The service has grown in attendance each year, subsequently outgrowing available churches and even Parkland secondary school.

Group urges sewer decision

Phil Jensen

Peninsula News Review

A group in North Saanich are urging council to make a decision on sewers, but council says the process must proceed as planned.

The most recent sewage-related petition from district residents was on North Saanich Council's agenda April 9. Originating from a group of Deep Cove property owners, the petition asked Council to conclude all ongoing studies of sewerage alternatives for Deep Cove and Pat Bay. Information included with the petition was in support of the group's claim that there are no environmentally acceptable, or economically responsible alternatives to the Saanich Peninsula Wastewater Treatment Plant (SPWTP) on Mainwaring Road.

The petition highlights the group's belief that a major impediment to any alternative system is disposal of the final effluent. They say it's unlikely that discharge of sewage effluent into Saanich Inlet will ever be allowed, due to the environmental sensitivity of that area. And seeking approval for an outfall into Satellite Channel appears to be a long, expensive, and uncertain process, they say. An earlier report from Giles Environmental Engineering, and a letter from David Brown, Pollution Prevention Manager for Vancouver Island appears to bear out this opinion.

District Administrator Joan Schill and engineering consultant Allan McCrae each submitted their own reports to help Councilors make a decision on the group's request. In her report, Schill recommended that the studies be completed. "To end the investigation before the evaluation has been received would require an amendment to the [Liquid Waste Management Plan]," she stated.

McCrae's report recognized that whatever treatment process is ultimately used will produce effluent, and that the effluent must be disposed of somewhere. He stated that any companies submitting proposals for alternative sewage systems must show "how disposal of effluent will be achieved and how conditions of the Municipal Sewer Regulations would be met." McCrae concluded, "Based on the submissions received [it will be clear] whether there are viable options to transporting wastewater to the [SPWTP]."

Speaking for the Deep Cove group, Gordon Harris, a retired civil engineer said, "We feel there is more than enough information on the table at this time. Sooner or later we have to look at the information and decide."

He asked Council to set a date when the studies must end and when they will make a "Go/No-go" decision.

Patrick Godfrey, a Deep Cove resident favouring alternative systems also addressed Council. He suggested that the environmental sensitivity of Saanich Inlet had been overstated in the petition, and in previous reports. "The moratorium [on the disposal of wastewater into Saanich Inlet] is a yellow light, not a red light," Godfrey said. He also charged that the process [of studying alternative systems] has been "seriously biased by activities of Council members working closely with special interest groups."

After additional discussion, Council carried a motion by Councilor Keith Thomas to complete the alternatives study process as laid out in the LWMP.

Speaking to THE REVIEW, District Administrator Schill indicated that any viable alternatives to the SPWTP should be identified by the end of May this year. She said, "Allan McCrae is also looking at alternative methods of collection and transmission [of effluent] to whatever treatment plant ends up being utilized."

Schill predicts that the necessary information will all come together by mid July. A community referendum, slated for October, is the final task that must be completed before a final decision in favour of the SPWTP, or an alternative system, can be made.

It's not really such a riddle

What has 60 legs, 30 heads and is the size of a small bus?

It's the Big Bike, and it will be in Sidney on May 22 between the hours of 9 and 11:30 a.m.

The Big Bike is a fundraiser held by the Heart and Stroke Foundation that encourages teams of 30 people at a time to take the 30-45 minute ride to raise money for the cause.

Route for the 3 km. ride is from Seaport Place, up

Beacon Avenue to Second Street, west on Sidney Avenue to Resthaven, a loop around Amelia to Fifth Street, then back down Beacon to Seaport Place.

Information on how to field a team for the ride will be forthcoming in the next few weeks, prior to the event.

Who're you going to elect?

Talk of western separation ebbs and flows, depending on the latest thing in Ottawa that ticks us off out here west of the Great Divide marked by Ontario's border. It's something to think about. But when we do, the question that will stump us is: Who will govern this new country/region/whatever we're going to call it?

This is a very important question that needs to be answered before we get into any future planning that involves separating from the Canada we know today. It's important because ... we don't get along, en masse, with our politicians, and they don't seem to get along with each other.

Think about it. Westerners are angry with Ottawa because the Great Red East has done its best to alienate us in so many ways, whether through reduction of transfer payments, withdrawing contracts to Western companies (such as ship-builders), or just plain ignoring our existence. The MPs in our Parliament don't seem to get along — whenever we see them on television, they're yelling at each other, thumping desks and otherwise showing total disdain for one another.

We don't like our provincial government, either (whichever party happens to be in at the time). And when they're not jumping from their seats in the Legislature calling each other 'Liar' or otherwise screaming absurdities at one another, they're on television telling us what the other one did wrong.

And with the election coming ... and coming, the disgust of the general populace is rising in anticipation of the vapid nonsense that will be spouted during that campaign. The one thing we can count on in this election (other than the verbal nonsense) is that it is one promise the government will actually keep — to call the election. And that's because they have to. It's the one time they can't announce it to death, and then never take action. That doesn't seem to stop Premier Ujjal Dosanjh from hinting at the announcement over and over again. It's the closest he can get to maintaining his usual pattern of announcing his non-announcements.

That brings us to the regional district. No one appears to trust them, here in the Capital Region or any other regional district we're familiar with in the province. The voters (who don't actually get to vote for their representative) don't trust them, and the municipally-elected politicians don't either (which is odd — they are the regional district). On the Peninsula, one council or the other makes reference to the CRD in a less than flattering way (it's often referred to as an octopus by one Sidney councilor) at one time or another.

Then we have our local politicians. Not only can councils often not get along with the next town's elected officials, they don't always like each other much, either. Every council has its supporters and detractors, but in nearly every council across the province, there are dissensions on council itself. While at the loftier levels of government the disdain is often about principles, on the local level it's often about personalities.

So who's going to lead?

Going into this election that's not an election yet (but may be today), local candidates have gotten tired of waiting for the final announcement, too. They've gotten together and decided to put up signs in common areas, and have been quite agreeable to travel around their constituency to meetings as if the election has already been called.

Before too long, they'll be carpooling.

Maybe we should simply elect them all, and they can lead the new western front. At least they seem to get along.

ON YOUR WAY OUTTA TOWN?

Caution! Tourists ahead!

So, did you go to Paris for your vacation?
I dunno. My wife bought the tickets.

Brace yourself, Canada. It is spring at long last; our splendid nation looks more beautiful and peaceful than ever, and the Canadian loonie is still worth just a hair more than a plugged nickel. Such a divine convergence of phenomena can signal but one thing:

The annual tidal run of tourists is just around the corner.

Don't get me wrong, I've got nothing against tourism. It's a decent enough way for a country to turn a buck — certainly better than clear-cutting a province, throwing up another box store megamall or draining a Great Lake.

I like tourists. I really do. Their credit cards and wallets are welcome any time at all.

But ... do they have to be so dumb? Tourists, I mean. Do they put their brains in cold storage before they cross the border? Not all of them, of course. Some visitors are smarter than, say Al Capone, who, when asked if he smuggled booze from Canada, replied, "I don't even know what street Canada is on."

On the other hand, some tourists make old Scarface look like Bertrand Russell. A travel agent I know told me of a phone call he took last year.

"I want to complain about Air Canada," the caller told him. Join the queue the agent thought, but replied "What's the problem, madam?"

"Weight discrimination," she hissed. "I was flying from Toronto to California and the ticket agent put a tag on my luggage that says FAT. I know I'm a bit overweight, but I won't stand for that kind of ridicule."

"Ah, where were you flying to in California, ma'am?"

"Fresno," replied the caller.

The travel agent put her on hold, laughed until he cried, composed himself, picked up the phone and said, "F.A.T. is the baggage code for Fresno, ma'am. I'm sure Air Canada meant ... nothing personal."

A tourist information office in Victoria, BC, recorded the following queries:

- How much do your totem poles grow every year?
- Are there any dogsled rental outlets in Victoria?
- I'm calling about this Kill-A-Whale thing. What do you do with them after you've killed them?
- (And, after being quoted a package tour price 'in Canadian funds')
- How many U.S. dollars in a fund?

I'd like to get smug and sanctimonious about the intelligence differential between savvy Canadians and gormless Americans but there's a story in my family about an uncle (relax, Aunt Eunice, I won't name him) who went with a busload of tourists on a tour of Runnymede in England.

"And this," intoned the tour guide, "is the spot where the barons forced King John to sign the Magna Carta."

My uncle pipes up: "When did that happen?"

"1215," answers the guide.

My uncle looks at his watch and says, "Damn! Missed it by half an hour!"

BEEFS and BOUQUETS

To the municipal workers repairing the boat ramp:

The bastions that shelter the ferry when it comes to port are now empty, and, in the grey, dripping gloominess of the morning, remind me of the doomsday futuristic movies doled out recently on cable. In contrast, the bright yellow lights of a repair truck flash in and out on the incline of a boat-launching slip now low in the bay with the tide.

A man in orange helps another who has bright yellow stripes on his back: flexing their knees, they check the floating (or not) of the dock, and a crane, its greasy elbow folded at rest, on the truck, is waiting its turn to lend a hand and lift (or set down) a section already checked for te'redo and rot.

The two men, now wet to the bone from the water defying their waterproof coats, dribbling down from hard hat in the space between collar and neck, are trying not to get hurt while with agile hands but soggy gloves they fumble to tie the last piece of the puzzle to the rest of the slip before an innocent boat speeding from the island across comes to dock for the paper and groceries, or a glass of beer at the pub.

An adjectorial reply

I read THE REVIEW of April 11 and saw myself described as competent, compassionate and even clever. I was flattered. Some of my friends and associates have thought other adjectives might be more applicable but we won't go there today.

I look forward to my new position and I agree with Dr. Farmer that these will be challenging times for health care on the Peninsula and across the country.

But more importantly, I want to share some adjectives for Dr. Farmer, who will be missed greatly in this community: devoted, knowledgeable, caring, hard-working and a great advocate for the Peninsula.

I know that I speak for all the staff at Saanich Peninsula Hospital in wishing her good luck on her new island.

Ambrose A. Marsh, M.D.
Saanich Peninsula Hospital

Editor's note: Dr. Marsh will be taking over for Dr. Ulana Farmer as Chief of Staff at SPH, following Dr. Farmer's move to Rhode Island, where her husband has taken a new position at the University of Rhode Island. And Dr. Marsh is right: she will be sorely missed.

Let the name remain: 'Senior Citizens Centre'

Since the inception of the Senior Citizens Centre in 1966, when the OAPO Branch 25 approached the Town of Sidney for aid in obtaining a meeting hall, the building has been known as the Senior Citizens Centre.

Thanks to Mayor Dear and the council at the time, the town built the present building. This building was built for all senior citizens residing or visiting the Greater Victoria area.

Had it not been for Mayor Dear and the Town council, as well as the Sidney Seniors, BCOAPO Branch 25 plus many other people who are too numerous to name, who knows when the seniors would have been able to have such a facility to enjoy. Please reconsider the renaming of the centre.

Will American fast food giant change Sidney-by-the-Sea?

As I passed the almost completed McDonald's building

LETTERS to the editor

by the highway, I realized that our one-of-a-kind, heritage town, a place with a unique core of history and a matchless waterfront location and a personality which so many people have worked to foster — now welcomes all comers with the most blatant symbol of American mediocrity throughout the world!

How did I miss the public meeting at which this decision was made? I would have said we already have Dairy Queen, Starbucks and Colonel Sanders. As well, there are more than 20 restaurants and cafés along our main street, Beacon Avenue alone, each with its own character, variety and charm to add to our town. Yet McDonald's [will] grace our entry point.

I expect we shall have more vehicles vying for parking space and our young people will have more temptation to indulge in 'fast food' (of debatable quality) in Sidney, rather than a few miles along the highway.

Now I shall drive to the wharf and the ocean to reassure myself that Sidney, that unique little town I love, still retains its character intact.

Lifelong learning is already here

I read with interest the article Lifelong Learning for Seniors in the March 7 REVIEW. The writer asked who wants to start a U3A for the Saanich Peninsula.

It seems to me we already have just the thing here in the excellent courses which UVic offers each spring and fall at Dunsmuir Lodge. Each term there are several hundred registrations and most are seniors living on the Peninsula who want to continue to learn, either through the lectures or the study groups where the "students" study a topic and prepare and present a paper.

The open house which the University hosts each January at Dunsmuir attracts several hundred people who get the chance to meet the instructors and register for the courses. If people are interested they can contact the University and have their name added to the mailing list. I've been taking these courses for over a dozen years.

Brutal violence on TV and at the movies depict aggression as acceptable — even condoned.

Young minds are conditioned to accept this as normal, unable to separate fact from fiction. People become desensitized to the daily media bombardment of B and Es and home invasion reports where the elderly victims are often beaten senseless just for the heck of it. It is doubtful the entertainment world will slip back to the era when Clark Gable in GONE WITH THE WIND caused quite a stir using the word 'damn' on screen! Now everything is acceptable, even explicit sex scenes. It's little wonder some of our people are confused and struggling to make sense of life.

hibiting good grades and the traits of honesty and reliability. Potential candidates were watched for some time by teachers and the principal to confirm suitability. A ceremony was held twice a year, at which time the whole school gathered to witness the senior students receive a badge bearing their name and the word 'Prefect'. This was a coveted position of trust that all students hoped to aspire to. Elementary as this system seemed, it worked well. Pupils knew they were monitored and any teasing or name-calling was terminated before it accelerated into hitting. Anyone rebellious enough to challenge the sentry was marched post-haste to the headmaster's office. I do not ever recall any child being sent to hospital or injury or the police being called to a school. This system established pride in the school as well as encouraging pupils to strive for achievement. The small wooden badge is long gone ... but the moment when finally a badge was pinned to my gym slip will forever remain a happy memory.

Sidney says yes to zoning, no to CRD

Council looks at CREST program

A request for Sidney Town council to endorse a bylaw that will result in the implementation of the CREST Network was turned over to staff by council on Monday, April 9. Staff will study the bylaw and its implications for Sidney, then make recommendations to council's committee of the whole meeting later this month.

CREST stands for the Capital Region Emergency Services Telecommunications network, and is a program that would see the establishment of a seamless communications network allowing all emergency organizations across the region to be able to talk to one another. The need for an integrated network became urgently apparent during the snow storm of 1996, which cut off each region from the rest, hampering rescue and other emergency efforts.

If the network is approved by all member municipalities, the technical provider recommended to provide the service would be Motorola Canada Ltd., tentatively agreed to March 28 by the CRD Emergency Services Communications and Information Systems steering committee and the Regional Board.

If all municipalities agree to go forward with the network, it would add 59 cents per month to each Telus bill.

Zoning bylaw approved

Zoning Bylaw 1660 was given final reading and adoption by council April 9, following the public hearing.

Just one person spoke to the bylaw, and that was in support of the changes. The new bylaw collapsed the existing 22 zones into 13, and revised the wording to eliminate unnecessary cross-referencing that existed in the current document.

The changes were made after a lengthy review process that included input from the community. The intended purpose of the process was to establish a simpler, more user-friendly bylaw and to update it to ensure compatibility with Official Community Plan bylaw 1612.

It's Cookie Week

Cookies — and they're coming to Sidney.

The annual spring cookie week begins April 21 through 28. The Girl Guides will be out in force on Saturday, April 21 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Thrifty Foods and Safeway.

Proceeds from the cookie sales enable the Sidney Dogwood District Girl Guides (Sparks, Brownies, Guides, pathfinders, Rangers) to experience camping, travelling and many other exciting opportunities. Be sure to come and support the girls.

The new Sanscha Cultural and Community Centre will get curb and gutter, road widening, pavement improvements, sidewalk and street lighting, thanks to council's acceptance of its petition for the improvements under the Local Government Act.

The acceptance came at the April 9 meeting.

A request from the Capital Regional District that Sidney participate in an annual funding program for arts and cultural grants was turned down by council April 9.

Coun. Bob Jones made the motion not to participate. "My intention is to give a clear message of where we're at at present. That could change, but as many people know — my opinions never change," he said.

Coun. Tim Chad said Sidney and North Saanich have just embarked on an expensive project with the new Sanscha Hall, and this would not be a good time to take on additional costs that he said would essentially duplicate what the Town already does to support the arts community.

... Liaison to Peninsula Crossroads Community Justice

Councillor Bob Jones has been named as liaison for Sidney Council to the Peninsula Crossroads Community Justice Committee.

The PCCJC put in its request for a liaison person following its presentation to council last month. The committee works in cooperation with Central Saanich Police Service, Sidney/North Saanich RCMP and School district 63 to offer its services, which is an alternative justice option that provides cost-effective ways to handle community solutions for less serious criminal matters.

Panorama takes its plan to the public

Judy Reimche
Peninsula News Review

Panorama Recreation Centre commission members have been taking their new proposal for expansion to various community groups across the Peninsula.

When centre manager Doug Henderson, Commission chair Nick Lott and member Tim Chad sat down with the staff at the Peninsula News Review on Wednesday, April 11, it was the 21st group they had spoken to thus far.

The Commission is asking residents of the Peninsula municipalities whether they are willing to invest in an upgrade of the Panorama facilities that will extensively enlarge and upgrade the change room facilities and swimming pool area. It would also see the two arenas linked to make a more cohesive, usable space. Other alterations would be in the lobby area, with the food concession and some office areas being relocated to make room for the change rooms.

The upgrade could cost up to $6.2 million, Henderson said, and those are 1999 dollars. "But we also haven't factored in any possible grants and the funds we already have in reserve," he said. "This [speaking tour] is simply a means of gauging the interest for the project in the community, and putting out the information.

The final numbers haven't been nailed down."

The need for an upgrade comes because of the age of the original facility and the increase in its use. In 1999, there were approximately 380,000 visits to the centre.

"There is a lack of program space, and that directly affects users, and revenue generated by the centre," Henderson said. Some groups, such as the figure skating clubs and swim club, must now book time at other recreation centres to fill their needs.

"The disjointedness of the current facility comes about because the original building (built in 1977) was upgraded in 1995 and again in 1997 (when the second arena was added). Each addition addressed some issues, but created some others. We want to bring it all together, and address the needs identified by our users," Henderson said.

If the question eventually goes to referendum, it would be a Capital Regional District bylaw, but would be under the control of the three municipalities. Henderson said the request would be for permission to borrow funds, "up to $6.2 million," based on most recent figures. "But that doesn't mean we would need to borrow that much," he cautioned. Other factors could lower that estimate. The loan would be paid back on a 50/50 basis through property tax bills and user fees.

Another means of earning revenue would be from the nearly one dozen group homes on the Peninsula who would use the centre even more than they do presently, if there were sufficient change areas for their people to use. Often there is a need for a person either in a wheelchair or with another special need to have an aide with them to help them get ready to go in the pool. Presently, the facility has no such space. Need for a family change room (where a mother could help her young son, for instance) was also identified and would be included in the upgrade plans.

Further revenue could be garnered through use of the facility's equipment for rehabilitation programs.

It's estimated that the cost breakdown to borrow $6.2 million would be: $18.46 per $100,000 assessed housing value in Central Saanich; $15.67 per $100,000 in North Saanich; and $17.04 per $100,000 in Sidney.

The Sooke Pool, opened in the Fall of 2000, was a $4 million facility, for which taxpayers chose to pay back at a rate of $62 per $100,000 assessed value. The Juan de Fuca pool, opened in June

Rewards of putting people with pets

Phil Jensen

Peninsula News Review

Sadey Guy, a Sidney resident, has been recognized with a Citizen of the Year Award for her work with pets and people. "Oh yes, I was surprised," said Sadey, who first learned of the announcement from a friend who heard it on the radio.

After she retired from nursing at the Saanich Peninsula Hospital in 1988, Sadey founded the Pacific Animal Therapy Society (PATS). Since then the organization has expanded to include about 300 people and their pets. She said, "Animal people have always known that pets are therapeutic." Scientific testing conducted in the '70s actually proved it, showing that simply talking to a pet reduces blood pressure in humans.

Sadey's eight-year-old Welsh Terrier, Dylan Thomas, volunteers for PATS about 10 hours a week. He loves the work, but finds he needs a good long nap after a morning of visiting with his human clients. Although dogs and

Kids asked to set terms for a youth centre

Judy Reimche

Peninsula News Review

The young people of Sidney and North Saanich — at least 800 of them — have spoken. Replying to a survey done by a special committee appointed by the Skateboard Committee, the students at Parkland secondary and North Saanich middle school have said they want a youth centre; that it should be free-standing (that is, not attached to Sanscha Hall or the schools) in downtown Sidney; that they want it open on more weekdays as well as during Christmas and summer holidays (but not during Easter); and that lack of transportation links does not keep them from attending.

However, 88 per cent of the kids answering also said they have never used the current centre; 91 per cent said they were not presently attending. Thirty-three per cent of the responders said they are using the skateboard park. The number one reason they didn't attend was because they didn't know about it. Others said they were too busy with other activities to attend. Yet other reasons for not attending the centre were because of the types of programs offered — 59 per cent of them said students should have the opportunity to plan some activities at the centre.

"Having a coffee house type facility ranked high, and so did music," said Peninsula Community Services coordinator Isabel McKenzie. PCS operates the youth centre.

"Tae Bo also ranked very high; interestingly enough, so did golf."

Students also wanted to have job postings available through the centre, counselling and access to information about drug abuse.

"We have to be careful to remember we aren't trying to be all things to all youth," McKenzie said. "Some youth are being served by Panorama [Recreation Centre], some are being served by the Cadets, or minor sports or other after school activities. We must be careful not to design it for those who don't use it. Our next step will be to do a custom tabulation of the information to fit the profile of the kid who isn't being served by other activities."

They'll do that by going through and tracking the answers given by all those who said they do now or have attended the youth centre, then assessing what those students need. When that is completed, they will put some recommendations to Town council, then await the Town's decision.

"The Town will make the decisions about location — that's a land use issue," said McKenzie. She said PCS is "excited about some of the opportunities related to moving from the present spot. But if they leave it as it is, it could create some synergies with the skateboard park. The whole point is to give the youth a place to hang out. Aside from programming and all the rest of it — they want to have a place to hang out."

Until other decisions are made, the youth centre will continue to be open from 3-6 p.m. on weekdays and on Saturday afternoons.

Herbie's 88 and loves the fast track

Phil Jensen

Peninsula News Review

Herbie Amy celebrated her 88th birthday enjoying simulcast racing at Sandown Park on Good Friday. Herbie told THE REVIEW that she's enjoyed horse racing all her adult life and attended nearly every event at Sandown since it first opened.

In recognition of her long-time appreciation of the sport, the fourth race of the day was named the Herbie Amy 88th Birthday Race.

Jackie Ballas, Director of Operations at Sandown, confirmed that Herbie personally knows every jockey and every horse on the track. This is substantiated by an article in the April 13 Fraser Downs Race Program which stated, "She knows every driver since they were knee high to a stallion."

"I went to Hawaii each year for 19 years with my winnings from racing," Herbie said.

But last year brought mixed blessings. Shortly after winning $14,000, Herbie had a stroke which deprived her of the use of her right arm.

"I'd put the money in the bank," she laughed, "But after having the stroke I couldn't get it out, because I couldn't write with my left hand."

When asked the secret of her success, Herbie answered, "You just have to be lucky. I have certain horses and drivers that I like and I stay with them. Today I'm betting on Wayward Willie and Tugboat Tyler."

A late afternoon phone call to Jackie Ballas at the track confirmed that Herbie's system works. Wayward Willie had placed second and Tugboat Tyler came in first.

Herbie Amy celebrated her 88th birthday on Friday the way she enjoys most days — enjoying simulcast racing at Sandown Raceway.

"Herbie asked me to tell you she's ahead," Ballas said.

The 676 KittyHawk Air Cadet Range Teams competed in the British Columbia Rifle Association shoot at Workpoint Barracks on Saturday, March 31.

Shooting with air rifles, the Senior Team placed second and the Junior Team, who entered the competition in sixth place, came in fourth.

The teams, who are coached by Captain Kris Stevens, must each have two members who have never entered competition before. Only the top six teams in BC are invited to compete in the annual shoot.

The 676 KittyHawk Air Cadets participated in the Vancouver Island Army, Sea and Air Cadets Drill Competition held in Nanaimo on Sunday, April 1.

The team put in many hard hours of practice and did a wonderful job representing the squadron. The work paid off, as they made an exemplary showing of precision marching during the competition.

LAC Sarah Green also competed in the Vancouver Island Effective Speaking contest held in Nanaimo on the same day.

2000, was a $6.5 million facility, being repaid at $25 per $100,000 assessed value.

Commission members have been requesting an opportunity to speak to a large number of community groups (ratepayers associations, service clubs, sports organizations, seniors groups, youth, etc.), and are open to any request to give their presentation.

Once the public process is complete, they will take the information, along with the input from the public, to each of the three municipal councils on the Peninsula.

"At that time, they will either agree to go forward with a referendum, or they won't. If they do, it will be a matter of all three municipalities agreeing to borrow the funds. If all three are not in agreement, we're dead in the water," said Nick Lott.

"We hope they'll agree, and that the taxpayers will, too." If your group or organization is interested in hearing from the Commission, contact Henderson or Lott by calling

CS council to revisit sewer requests

Laura Lavin

Peninsula News Review

The Central Saanich Water and Waste Management Committee took another look April 9 at a request that Haldon and East Saanich Rd. area residents be included in the sewer collection area. Council passed a resolution on Feb. 5 to postpone further consideration of such requests for sewer inclusion for specific properties in that region, pending a report from staff on the alternative costs to the residents of undertaking improvements to the storm drainage there, compared with the costs of extending the sewer line and installing any necessary pump systems.

The residents have said they are inundated with excessive water during the winter months and as a result, their septic systems are not working properly.

In a letter to council dated Feb. 9, Erwin Dyck, registered Environmental Health Officer from the Capital Health Region stated that, "[the residents] problems are directly related to the poor soil and site conditions in the area and the winter saturation due to the rains. This situation is compounded because the area is situated at the bottom of a long slope.

These failing sewage systems would be expensive to repair and could cost tens of thousands of dollars. Without proper storm drainage they have no chance of working properly at all."

District staff has confirmed that CHR had not performed any tests on the septic systems in the area. It was further confirmed that the area has insufficient soil depth for a septic field to today's standards. The CHR said they have no reason to believe that the septic systems have failed.

Councillor Michelle Haddon told the residents, "I don't think there's any denying you have a sewage problem in the area. But we need further discussion with the CHR — our policy is not to pay. The next step is to find out what you're willing to pay for ... what kind of dollars you're willing to put in."

Coun. Allison Habbirk made a motion that district staff meet with the residents to go over the contents of the report and forward it to the CHR for their information. Coun. Christopher Graham moved that staff determine if a new storm drainage system would be a viable option. Finally Habbirk made another motion to request staff to provide information on land use implications. All three motions were passed.

TAX TIPS

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q. What's the penalty for missing the deadline to file my personal taxes?

A. You should always send in your tax return by the annual deadline. Even if you'll have a balance owing that you can't pay right away, you should still file on time to avoid the late-filing penalty.

The late-filing penalty is:

- 5% of the balance owing; and
- an additional 1% of the balance owing for each full month that your return is late, to a maximum of 12 months
- NOTE: The penalty may be higher if you've already been charged the late-filing penalty in any of the three previous years.

If you missed the tax-filing deadline because of circumstances beyond your control, the penalty and applicable interest may be waived.

- In this case, include a letter of explanation when you do file your return.
- For more information, please see Information Circular 92-2. Guideline for the Cancellation and Waiver of Interest and Penalties

Q. What should I do if I owe taxes that I can't pay right now?

A. If you've calculated your taxes and know that you can't currently pay your balance owing, you should still file your tax return by the annual deadline to avoid the late-filing penalty.

After your return has been processed you will be sent a Notice of Assessment. If your Notice shows a balance owing that you can't pay, you should arrange a mutually acceptable payment schedule by contacting a tax services office.

Any outstanding balance is subject to daily compound interest, starting on the annual filing deadline and continuing until you've paid the amount in full.

- The prescribed interest rate applied to amounts owed to the CCRA is announced each quarter in effect for that quarter (a new quarter begins on the first day of January, April, July and October each year).

Local schools mark Earth Day on Friday

■ Environmentalists, dancers and even the Raging Grannies will help celebrate Earth Day at Bayside school

Bayside middle school will be holding its annual celebration for Earth Day on Friday, April 20. This year they have invited several environmentalists, First Nations dancers, a storyteller, a Latin singer, and guitarist, and the ever-popular Raging Grannies to join them for their event.

There will be three grade assemblies where the students will view the award winning film, Spaceship Earth, which will help them to understand environmental issues from a global perspective.

Guest speakers and musicians will add to the festivities. Included in the program will be a philanthropic group from Stelly's school who have recently returned from Costa Rica. They will report on their hands-on experiences there.

The lunch hour will host some informative table displays, including a water quality testing station. Several interactive workshops will also take place in some of the classrooms that day, featuring themes such as the ecological footprint, watersheds, worm composting and community food mapping.

Once again this year, the creative students have decorated grocery bags supplied by Thrifty Foods with wonderful environmental messages. After being displayed at the school they will go back to Thrifty's to be used as grocery bags for their customers. Watch out for the Bayside decorated grocery bags at the Central Saanich Thrifty Foods — the students hope that they will hold some "food for thought"!

Wil'nnew Career Expo is an upbeat affair

Laura Lavin

Peninsula News Review

The Wil'nnew Employment Skills and Training Services held a Career Expo at the Saanich Fairgrounds on March 20 and 21. Several presentations were made for an audience interested in job opportunities, scholarships, self employment, training and work experience.

Many local companies and non profit agencies that have been able to build partnerships with the aboriginal community, as well as those with aboriginal employees hosted booths at the Expo. They showcased their services, and offered a variety of information to participants.

Employment councillor Glenn Jim and program coordinator Deanna Daniels were pleased with the success of the Career Expo. "It was a really upbeat, positive environment," said Jim.

Daniels agreed, "It was a

Wil'nnew began as a community committee seven

Kids raise funds for Quebec trip

More than 200 auction items have been amassed for Bayside middle school's Quebec 2002 Silent/Live

Auction Night Saturday, April 21, 6:30 - 9:30 p.m. at the school. The items include seakayaking/whale watching, an aerial sightseeing tour and more. All proceeds to support the Grade 7 trip to Quebec in May 2002.

Leadership and lyrics live on Leadership at Stelly's has always been a vital part of the student atmosphere and day to day life. Extended leadership into the community and neighboring schools is no exception.

Last Thursday, Stelly's hosted a Grade 8 Conference for graduating students of Bayside middle school. The idea is to incorporate a welcoming atmosphere and a familiarity with the high school that will be new to the couple hundred of eighth graders.

The staff, along with Student Council, organized the conference, which served a barbecue lunch, and offered opportunities for students to participate in fun, student-led activities. One of these included a contest where students could sing in order to win Easter treats.

The Student Council and students at Stelly's believe opportunities like these are beneficial not only to the upcoming students but also to the relations of schools and parents in the district. When schools collaborate and bring together the variety of options they offer, everyone benefits, and school is turned into an easier and more enjoyable place to be for many students.

The students also got to enjoy a sampling of Stelly's musical talent. All of last week and continuing this week, Stelly's is featuring their best bands in our annual BATTLE OF THE BANDS. Every day at lunch, a student band performs for the school, and at the end of the week, one band is declared a winner. These performances are open to the public, and are a showcase of some of Stelly's best musicians, many of whom write their own material.

As always, Stelly's is proud of its students' many accomplishments in their respective areas, and is looking forward to much success in the upcoming weeks.

Wanna get back in the swim?

How many of you have a history of working in aquatics, but have been out of it for a number of years?

If you've been thinking about getting involved again, the Red Cross Lifesaving Society has developed a new program to make it easier.

SPLASHBACK re-trains swimming instructors that have let their certification expire. This 20-hour course teaches you all you need to know about the Aquaquest program that was first introduced in 1996. Once you have completed the course, you can hop back in the water and start teaching people how to swim again!

"If people are looking for some part-time hours, especially during the day, this may be an opportunity they wish to explore. We are always looking for staff that are able to work during the daytime, Monday to Friday," says Simone McLure who organizes the swimming lessons at Panorama.

Jeff Byron, Panorama's Aquatic Coordinator, recently assisted in a pilot of the program in Qualicum Beach. "It's a great way for people who have been involved in aquatics in the past to update their qualifications and the enjoyment of teaching," and rediscover the enjoyment of teaching," Byron says.

Information on the SPLASHBACK program can be obtained by calling either Jeff or Simone at Panorama (656-0007, extension 231 or 243).

Count yourself in: It's Census time

Laura Lavin

Peninsula News Review

Count yourself in! On Tuesday, May 15, Statistics Canada's census of Population and Agriculture takes place.

The Census of Agriculture is the basic inventory of Canadian agriculture taken every five years. Questions are asked on a variety of topics including farmland use, crops, livestock, paid agricultural labour and land management practices. The Census of Agriculture identifies trends, issues and successes within the agricultural community. It provides comprehensive information on the industry, from the township/rural municipality level to the national level.

The census of population provides a statistical portrait of the country and its people. Almost every country in the world has a census regularly to count its population, and determine the social and economic situation of its people. In Canada there is a census held every five years.

Twenty percent of the population will receive the long questionnaire, which contains 59 questions. The remaining 80 percent will answer seven questions. You can obtain copies of the questionnaires by contacting the local Statistics Canada office in Vancouver, or by visiting their website at www.statcan.ca.

Census forms will be hand-delivered to each household during the first week of May, and completed forms must be returned by May 15. There will be a census telephone helpline available for the month of May, for help in filling out the questionnaire.

The questions cover 10 categories from basic population information and activities of daily living, to socio-cultural information, education, income and housing.

Population information is used for planning social programs, such as Old Age Security and the Child Tax Benefit. Towns and cities use the information to plan a variety of services such as day care centres, schools and seniors residences using census statistics.

Sociocultural information is used to compare the socio-economic conditions of immigrants over time, to review immigration and employment policies and programs, as well as providing information about ethnic diversity.

Questions on income are used to develop income support programs and social services such as Old Age Security Pension, provincial income supplements, social assistance and welfare payments.

Information on the number of rooms and bedrooms in homes and on housing costs is combined with data on the number of people living in households to assess the economic situation of families in different parts of the country.

According to Statistics Canada, the first census in Canada was held in 1666 [New France] when the population was 3,215; by 1961, that had risen to 18,238,247, in 1996, the last census, it stood at 28,846,761.

Bugs can be controlled — naturally!

In 1978 we had frost on the roofs and on the car windows April 14 but in 1983, on April 12 we ate lunch outside, with a temperature of 73 degrees!

In 1986 I put 4,000 ladybugs in the greenhouse on April 13. These were ordered from California, and most of them were dead on arrival. I still feel sick when I think about it!

Thank goodness we now grow them locally, so when you order these wonderful aphid predators, you get LIVE ones.

They terrify aphids just by being there. I recall one ladybug, walking casually across a fuchsia leaf, when a nice fat aphid spotted her idea aphid eyesight was so keen! He took one look and bailed off that leaf like a skydiver: "Whee, Ma, look at me, I'm flying!"

The place to buy predatory insects on the Island is called Tridon Hydroponics, on Quadra Street, in Victoria.

Maybe this would be a good time to talk about attracting "good bugs" to your garden. These tiny creatures feed on aphids, white flies, spider mites, thrips, beetle larvae, and slug eggs, and can be attracted to your garden so that you no longer have to rely on chemical controls.

Rather than chop out all wild "weeds" such as dan-

HELEN LANG
Over the Garden Fence

delions, leave a few in the back yard, as well as gold-enrod, wild carrot, lamb's quarters, nettles and wild mustard, which are all good sources of food for many predatory insects.

Because most of us don't know one beetle from another we tend to kill them all. Ground beetles are one of a gardener's best friends. They are the ones who, when you turn over a rock they've been hiding under, scurry wildly away to hide under anything they can find. They are large, shiny beetles, who eat slug eggs, grub and insect pupae. GOOD bugs!

Linda Gilkeson is going to speak on identifying the good bugs; and how to rid your garden of the bad ones at the Horticultural Centre, Saturday April 28 from 10 until noon. Call 479-6162 to register. This young woman knows what she's talking about!

You won't have enough tomato leaves for a while, but, when you do, this recipe is supposed to stop black spot and mildew on roses. You need to blend 2 cups of tomato leaves with two cups of water. Add 4 pints more water, and 1 ounce of corn starch. Blend, strain, and use as a spray every two weeks.

Keep the spray in the fridge. Won't it be wonderful if it works!

Does anyone know the name of the nursery, somewhere off Oldfield Road, which sells unusual trees, (such as Linden, elderberry, the junipers which produce the berries), many not readily available at your average nursery?

Eleanor called to offer a suggestion to those whose camellias won't bloom. She's found that if you scrape soil away from the crown of the plant it will flower. The same thing applies to azaleas. If you plant them too deeply they too won't bloom.

Laurie S. has artichokes that are now several feet tall. She did cut them back last fall, but wondered if she should cut them back again now. I'd leave them to continue growing. She should have the earliest "chokes" in town!

M.C. has cosmos coming up all over her garden, and wondered if they had become weeds. There is an old adage which says "anything growing where you don't want it is a weed", but cosmos is generally considered a summer flowering annual flower that propagates generously wherever seed lands.

Himself has been busy building handsome planter boxes. He's made six of those that have rotted out and some extra. Next week I'd like to talk about planting boxes, hanging baskets, and other containers; flowers that will be somewhat drought resistant.

Today we bought some bedding plants, (which will go into the greenhouse) and J.J. bought some low growing dahlias for a box he considers HIS! I'm a little nervous about his sudden interest in gardening. I've had my own way so long I'm feeling somewhat threatened!

Please don't forget our garden show from 9 a.m. until 1:30 p.m., Saturday, April 21, at the Saanichton Fair Grounds.

Come early and buy LOTS!

Be [scooter] street safe

With more people out and about these warmer days, RCMP Const. Kim Horsman warns all ages about street safety. Just as cyclists are not supposed to be on sidewalks, people on scooters and in wheelchairs are classified as pedestrians, and must travel on sidewalks. Recently, there have been several reports of people driving scooters in the middle of the street, said Horsman, "which is definitely not the way to go."

Persons purchasing mobility aides are required to be instructed in safe operating practices. Responsible scooter vendors should provide instruction on safe scooter operation when persons purchase a scooter, but there are also workshops, usually one a year in Sidney.

There are brochures at the Hotline office in Beacon Plaza Mall, the RCMP office and the Library. A video tape — SAFETY ON WHEELS — is also available at the library.

A free scooter safety seminar is available through the Red Cross House, 909 Fairfield Road. This is offered to anyone using an electric scooter or power wheelchair, or anyone who is in the market to purchase one. To register for the course, sponsored by the Canadian Red Cross in co-operation with the Capital Health Region and the Greater Victoria Power and the Greater Victoria Committee, call 995-3512.

Clean those dryer lint traps

For many consumers, the clothes dryer has become an appliance of both convenience and necessity. According to the appliance industry, clothes dryers can be found in 80 per cent of homes.

With so many clothes dryers in use, Underwriters Laboratories and others are addressing rising concerns about the risk of fire caused by improper venting and ducting materials, or poor maintenance.

Based on the US Consumer Product Safety Commission and Canadian Standards Association International findings, lack of maintenance is a contributing factor to clothes dryer fires.

Reduced airflow resulting from lint buildup in the screen or other areas around the dryer can cause appliances to perform poorly and operate at elevated temperatures.

Problems can also occur if consumers place improper items in their dryers, such as foam-backed rugs or athletic shoes, or vent their appliances with plastic, vinyl or aluminum foil exhaust materials. To achieve optimal airflow and reduce lint buildup, an all-metal dryer vent or duct is recommended. Rigid or flexible metal venting and ducting materials help sustain full airflow, as well as reduce operating costs and extend the life of the dryer and clothing due to lower drying temperatures.

Consumers should take the time to read manufacturers' warning labels on dryers, and care and use manuals. The increased use of plastic, vinyl and aluminum foil-type venting materials has sparked new concerns. Such flexible venting materials are known to collapse or trap lint, obstructing airflow and posing an increased risk of dryer fires.

Unfortunately, corrugated plastic ducting is readily available. Lint can accumulate more easily due to the corrugated configuration and because the product has the potential of becoming crushed. There are concerns that consumers are purchasing the plastic and vinyl venting materials contrary to manufacturers' installation guidelines, because the materials are easier to install, particularly where there are various structural obstacles. It is highly recommended that lint traps and screens, as well as areas around the dryer, be cleaned regularly.

Ailments named by the colour are so much more fun

Names of common diseases are infinitely more interesting when they are combined with a colour.

Schoolteachers seemed much more impressed when, rather than a case of measles, I had contracted the "black measles of death." Hemorrhoids were much more dramatic as the "purple grapes of wrath" and chicken pox became the "raging redneck rooster virus."

Some actual colourful medical conditions with names borrowed from spectral splendor include:

Pink eye: A common term for conjunctivitis, pink eye is an infection of the outer lining of the eyeball and eyelids. Though usually caused by a virus it can also have a bacterial origin that responds best to warm compresses and antibiotic drops. This highly contagious schoolyard illness is not to be confused with red eye as in "I caught the red eye from New York but I caught pink eye from Rob-

Reflex Hammer

bie Cossette."

Yellow fever: A mosquito borne virus stemming from the steamy jungles of Africa and South America. The virus attacks the liver creating a yellow jaundice. A more common strain of "yellow" fever is found in fearful high school students the morning of big exams.

Greenstick fracture: The classic fracture of kids wherein the bone, not yet hard and brittle, tends to buckle more than snap outright. The resulting "greenstick" fracture is much like breaking a green branch. As I recall, this term was first introduced to me by my mother with "You better never do that again or I'll fracture this here green stick over your bonnie blue butt."

Mongolian Blue Spot: Speaking of mothers, one woman in my practice is quite skittish about taking her son to the emergency room. Because he has Mongolian blue spots, a congenital deep dark pigment change of the skin that resembles bruising, she is constantly being eyed suspiciously by ER doctors concerned about child abuse. Since she began carrying a note from me stating that Junior has this condition, her nine-hour emergency room investigations have been reduced to the usual eight-hour wait.

Whiteheads: An emergency medical condition when found to emerge Friday night on the forehead of any 16-year-old. May go hand in hand with the dreaded ...

Blackhead: Which, by the way, would be a great new name for cigarettes. In the ongoing battle with the teeny boppers who huddle outside the school puffing away madly, smoking may start to lose its lustre to these teenage sheep if they have to ask "Hey dude, can you spare a Blackhead? Heck you've got a whole pack."

Gangrene: Okay, close enough for my spelling. When an extremity has been invaded by bacteria and the blood supply is choked off, the limb begins to putrefy. This often requires amputation and the limb is sent off to the same silo where Revenue Canada stores the arms and legs of honest Canadians.

Scarlett fever: A diffuse

red rash associated with Strep throat, but frankly my dear you don't need to give a damn as the severity of this once very nasty variation of Strep throat has lessened significantly over the years.

Port wine stain: Another congenital lesion, this large flat dark purple lesion can be associated with glaucoma when found on the face.

Cherry and strawberry hemangiomas: Though perhaps these should be classified with Lyme disease under medical fruit conditions, these are common and benign lesions. The strawberry mark appears shortly after birth as a raised red spot that usually fades away by adolescence. The cherry hemangiomas are blood red blebs known as Morgan spots that appear in the older population.

I could go on but I'm getting a cramp in my hand and a spasm in my brain. Must be a case of "indigo lily livered writers block."

What are you doing April 26?

How about some fun while supporting the Boys Scouts.

I will be auctioning everything from laser eye surgery to rides in police cars to Panther's game worn jerseys and even my own game worn tie complete with splashes of clamato juice.

I'll be auctioning off all kinds of goods and services and even the Boy Scouts themselves.

Vision Matters

Macular Degeneration The Enemy of Central Vision

Age Related Macular Degeneration (ARMD) is the leading cause of vision loss among people over the age of fifty. The macula is the part of the eye that provides central vision.

There are two types of age-related macular degeneration, "wet" and "dry." The most common is the "dry" type, where the gradual thinning of the macula causes a slow loss of central vision. This affects key activities such as reading, driving and recognizing faces. Peripheral vision is usually not affected. Currently, there is no treatment for "dry" ARMD, although research suggests that certain vitamins, minerals and diet may play a role in prevention.

A growing body of research has linked lutein, an antioxidant found in green, leafy vegetables, to the prevention of ARMD. Diet has been examined to determine if nutrients can slow the aging process in the eye. Vitamins A and E, selenium and zinc are among the nutrients being studied. Other factors, such as smoking, alcohol intake, cumulative sun exposure and genetics have been linked to the occurrence of ARMD.

"Wet": age-related macular degeneration is less common, but may cause sudden, severe vision loss. This form of ARMD is caused by the rapid growth of abnormal blood vessels under the macula. These abnormal vessels leak fluid resulting in scarring and the subsequent loss of visual acuity. The key to treatment of "wet" ARMD is to stop the leakage of the abnormal blood vessels and thereby stop the scarring of the affected tissue. Early detection and prompt treatment is vital in limiting damage. Currently, laser therapy is used to treat this condition by destroying some of the leaking vessels. This treatment can only be used in a minority of cases.

Regular eye examinations allow optometrists to look for signs of ARMD as well as other eye diseases such as glaucoma and cataracts. Optometrists can also help patients with significant vision loss by prescribing magnifying devices or low vision aids. You owe it to yourself and others to have regular eye examinations.

Merger Update #6

An important message for TD Bank and Canada Trust customers in British Columbia.

Building A Better Bank For You

This is the sixth update I've provided TD Bank and Canada Trust customers about the important changes they can expect as we integrate the retail banking operations of TD Bank and Canada Trust into TD Canada Trust. For over a year now, we've been working hard to build a better bank. That experience will soon become available to you.

Following the completion of our transition to TD Canada Trust, all our branches will open on May 22nd as TD Canada Trust, with a new look both inside and out. Our new name will appear on all cheques, statements, and correspondence. In fact, as of March, TD Bank customers have already encountered our new name on their statements and while banking on the telephone with TD Canada Trust EasyLine™ and on the Internet with TD Canada Trust EasyWeb™ at www.tdcanadatrust.com.

Although you may have noticed a few changes to these services, such as a new voice and a modified menu, mainly it has been business as usual. We thank you for your patience as we have guided the transition to the new TD Canada Trust.

After the integration process is complete, all our customers will experience the same integrated services and a unified array of retail banking products. Our ABMs will offer a full range of banking services under the name Green Machine.® What will not change are our hours of operation – except to be extended, our people inside the branches, and our commitment to building a better bank for you.

Canada Trust Branches Will Be Closed On The May 19th Weekend

In order to complete the integration to our new TD Canada Trust systems, all Canada Trust branches will close over the weekend of May 19th in Alberta, British Columbia, Yukon and Northwest Territories. However, our ABMs will be open 24 hours a day so you can withdraw funds. And while you'll be unable to access Internet banking over the weekend, you will still be able to bank by phone 24 hours a day.

Communicating With You

If you're a Canada Trust customer, you will be sent an Accounts & Services Guide approximately 30 days in advance detailing changes you will experience as a result of our integration. In addition, you'll receive a new TD Canada Trust Access Card closer to the time of integration. If you're a Private Investment Counsel client, you'll also be sent a separate mailing approximately 30 days before this business is unified.

We will also keep you informed about our integration progress through regular reports in our branches, on the Internet, and in updates such as this in Canada's newspapers.

Integration In Your Area Follows Successful Atlantic Integration

Atlantic Canadians were the first to experience the integration of TD Bank and Canada Trust into TD Canada Trust.

The integration process over the weekend of March 24th was a great success. A total of 63 TD Bank and Canada Trust branches now carry the new TD Canada Trust name. We've begun to deliver on our promise of building a better bank. We will continue to fulfill that promise as we roll out the integration across Canada.

Next month, the second wave of our nation-wide integration begins when 202 TD Bank branches and 118 Canada Trust branches integrate in your area.

Nationwide Integration Complete By August

By the end of August we will have combined our retail banking operations into TD Canada Trust all across Canada.

We've already integrated our discount brokerage operations and mutual fund arms, simplified our chequing and savings accounts packages, and integrated the Estates & Trusts Services operations of our two organizations into one. And on May 31st, our Private Investment Counsel and Private Investment Management businesses will also be combined.

Some Branches Will Be Consolidated

Many people have asked if we'll be consolidating any of our branches or re-locating them. Yes, we will. In your area, this will begin as early as July. Retail bank customers who are affected will be given at least 120 days notification. We are working hard to minimize the impact the consolidation has on our customers and employees. For example, when two branches with different operating hours consolidate, the new branch will adopt the longer hours of operation. We are committed to opening new branches; this year we plan to open at least 10 new individual branches, plus 40 new branches in retail outlets across the country.

Travelling Inside Or Outside Canada Soon?

If you are travelling outside Canada during the next few months, it will be important to have your mail forwarded so you can receive notices about your accounts and ensure your banking is uninterrupted. If you are travelling inside Canada to areas that haven't yet been integrated, it will be business as usual when you bank. And if you're travelling to Atlantic Canada, rest assured that you can do your banking at any TD Canada Trust branch in that region.

Our Goal Is To Build A Better Bank For You

Bringing together two of Canada's largest financial service organizations is anything but simple. We will make mistakes. But we will move to correct any errors quickly, completely – and cheerfully. If you have any questions, or if you feel we are not meeting your expectations, simply call our TD Canada Trust Customer Information Line at 1-888-572-8924.

Let me close by saying how much we appreciate that TD Canada Trust is your bank. No matter how you choose to bank with us – in person, at an ABM, on the telephone, or over the Internet – you will receive high quality service and the ongoing commitment of our employees to build a better bank for you. That's why we are working hard to offer you the best possible banking experience in Canada.

Thank you.

Arts community makes its mark from April 23 to 30

Arts and Culture Week, which runs from April 23 to 30, is an initiative of the B.C. Arts Council. The goal of the week is to raise awareness of the vital role that the arts and culture play in all aspects of our lives. Throughout the week, each Regional Arts Council will focus on some aspect of the arts.

Our Arts Council has chosen the Sidney Museum and the art work of primary school children to be its focus. We hope that you will take time to visit the Museum (downstairs in the Old Post Office) to view the vibrant artistic expressions of teacher Arlena Dodds' primary students in Brentwood elementary school. The show ends on April 30.

feel are worthy of recognition. I encourage everyone to attend this show — especially if you are looking for a piece for your home or for a gift. Some of our area's best known artists made their start in this show! The show runs from May 4 to May 6 at the Saanichton Fairgrounds.

Along with a wide variety of painting, there is a selection of crafts, and this year, the organizers have encouraged a wider variety of crafts than have been present in the past. It is nice to see that our respected and long-time area potters, John and Diana Anderson, are to be the featured artists.

On the following weekend, Friday, May 11, folk music enthusiasts will be treated to the Celtic/Gypsy music of the WALTER BODEGA BAND, sponsored by Deep Cove Folk. The concert begins at 8 p.m. in St. John's Church across from Deep Cove School.

Preparations are underway for the Community Arts Council's Studio Tour. Applications are available for Peninsula artists and crafts persons wanting to participate in this year's Studio Tour. Call the Arts Council at 656-7400 for more information.

Everyone should note that the Tour is free and that maps locating all of the studios will be available in book stores and art shops at the end of May.

For July and August, the Sidney Summer Market is going to establish a special area near Beacon and Second Street called the Street of the Arts. The organizers are encouraging artists to demonstrate, display and sell their work to an audience of about 2000 visitors per evening. For details, contact Brenda Milne at 656-1910.

As a postscript, all of us in the arts community were saddened to learn of the passing of Red Fairhall. Red was carver, and his works were featured in past years in both the SPAC May Show and in ARTISANS, the Arts Council's annual show and sale. Later, he was one of the Summer B.C. Ferry Artists. Red will be missed by all of us.

Friday, April 30, will be the final evening of the Literary Reading Series for this season. In fact, this reading will also be the last of the series of readings we have enjoyed over the past seven years. Two well-known local writers, Pauline Holdstock and Marion Farrant, have organized the series and have brought to Sidney many outstanding and award-winning poets, novelists and essayists. With assistance from the Canada Council and the Community Arts Council, Pauline and Marion have been able to bring over 76 writers to Sidney. Thank you, Pauline and Marion!

The readers for this last reading are George Szanto and Brad Cran. The music will be by WATER IN THE CRAWL SPACE. It takes place at Annabel's Cafe (formerly the Breakwater) at 7:30 p.m.

One of the long established Spring traditions for artists in our area is the preparation for the Saanich Peninsula Arts and Crafts Club (SPAC) Annual May Show. Once the work is hung, and prior to the any viewing by the public, jurors examine the full show and select works that they

Hoppy Easter

Sidney Kiwanis Club held its first annual Easter Egg Hunt at Iroquois Park on Sunday, and 104 kids showed up to take part. The morning started with face-painting, egg decorating and a colouring contest, and then the kids headed over to the adjacent field to find 1,000 golf balls (that they exchanged for Easter eggs). Each of the children, aged 0 - 8, received a prize and candy for their efforts. The Kiwanis Club members were pleased with the turnout, and say this will be the first of many such events for their club. Because of the success of this venture, club president Patrick Ewing said they will be looking for partners and possible sponsors for next year's Hunt.

At least one of the models here is well-known to local residents, but when the finished product is ready, the faces will have changed. The two (somewhat) willing locals modelled for a new statue being commissioned for the new Sanscha Community and Cultural Centre.

New statue for Sanscha

The new Sanscha Community and Cultural Centre will retain its hold on history. First built as a memorial to those who fought in the First and Second World Wars, the new building will be graced by a statue of a war veteran and a little girl; the veteran is passing on his knowledge of history while the child looks at an obelisk nearby that tells the story of war.

The statue is the brainchild of Memorial Park Society chair John Bell. The society has retained the services of Nathan Scott to create it. To help get the project funded, call Reg Teeney at 655-1808.

Brentwood Coiffures presents...

*"Special Touches
for that Special Day"*

Where your hair becomes our TOP priority.

ALWAYS A FRIENDLY
SERVICE

Mon.-Sat. 8-5, Thurs. 8-7

Brentwood Shopping Centre (Beside the Royal Bank) 652-3333

Your hairstyle will be your crowning glory on the wedding day. So the last thing you would want would be to have a startling surprise when you look in the mirror.

To be sure your hair and makeup will be just what you want, get your hair styled as it will look on your big day at least twice before you walk down the aisle. That goes for your makeup, too.

Going through a few 'dry runs' when it comes to this most important part of your look will take away some of those wedding jitters, and gives your stylist a chance to work with your hair and be confident that the finished coiffure will be just what you want.

Brentwood Coiffures, in the Brentwood Shopping Centre, can be counted on to give you the most flattering look for your face and features.

Maureen Scholefield and her creative staff carry a full line of top quality hair care products that will be sure to see you through your day with any touch-ups that might be needed.

Brentwood Coiffures is at 1187 Verdier Avenue, next to the Royal Bank, and is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday to Saturday, and Thursday until 7 p.m. Give them a call at 652-3333.

Wedding of your dreams

Whatever the season or setting of your ceremony and reception, your choice of flowers will leave a lasting impression.

Whether your wedding is to be built around a simple suit or an elaborate gown, you can depend on us to promote the perfect complements. It is good idea to bring with your fabric swatches of bride, attendants and mothers dresses, and also be prepared to answer questions about the degree of formality, style of dresses, colour scheme and the number of people in the wedding party. Bringing in a list of all the wedding details saves time.

Our fully qualified professional designers can assist you with choosing bouquet styles for you and your attendants, corsages for the mothers, grandmothers and other special ladies, boutonnieres for the groom, groomsmen, fathers, grandfathers and master of ceremonies, as well as flowers for the church altar, pew markers, bridal head table and reception table centerpieces, guest book signing table and of course, the cake.

There are a large variety of roses to choose from, in beautiful shades, also elegant orchids including single blooms or smaller spray types. Other favourites are alstromeria, miniature and full size carnations, gerbera daisies, daisy chrysanthemums and sunflowers. To compliment; babysbreath, wax flower, limonium, heather, statice and solidaster. Most of these flowers are available year round, though some are seasonal.

Our designers use the freshest blooms grown locally as well as exotic imports. We tailor our designs to reflect the bride's personality and to suit every budget. Visit our store at 7111 West Saanich Rd., or call us at 652-2131, and let us create the wedding of your dreams.

Beauty tips from Shannon

I began my career as an esthetician almost 10 years ago and I can honestly say that there isn't a day that goes by that I don't feel blessed in this profession.

Currently I have the luxury of working from a studio in my home. I provide a relaxed, comfortable environment and cleanliness is very high on my list of priorities.

I continue my education in facial, nail and body care by attending classes and seminars in Make-Up Artistry and Skin care. I retail one of the leading make-up and skin care lines known world-wide, and I would love to share their wonderful results and secrets with you.

Make U Artistry is one of my specialties and weddings are always a wonderful occasion. I love to meet with brides and their attendants prior to the big day to discuss all of the arrangements and to answer any questions she may have.

Here are some tips I'd like to share with you.

Meet with the make-up artist of your choice to arrange a consultation appointment for your make-up application to avoid any surprises and disappointments on your big day.

Make your hair appointment before your make-up application appointment. (Ensure your hair is done including the veil).

Wear a button-up shirt so you needn't worry about moving your hair or smudging your make-up on your clothing.

Makeup application takes one half hour to 45 minutes. Leave plenty of time to get dressed and be where you need to go!

Talk with your make-up artist or esthetician about customizing a color compact for you to take with you on your wedding day for touch ups you may need! This is a very useful keepsake to maintain your beautiful look.

Please call me for an appointment or to ask any questions you may have I'd be happy to help you!

This hand-crafted Wedding Goblet is based on the Jewish Tradition of the Seventeenth Century. The Tradition requires that the Wedding Goblet and the two rings be crafted from a single piece of wood in order that the two rings may remain unbroken. When the bride and groom toast each other from the same goblet on their wedding day, the unbroken rings, symbolizing strength, unity & eternity, involve a very powerful bond for the happy couple's future together. A perfect Anniversary gift too.

Peninsula News Review

Panorama Recreation Centre was host to the sixth Annual Vancouver Island Indoor Wheelchair Tennis Championships April 14 and 15.

Part of the Canadian Wheelchair Circuit, the eight players were vying for valuable national ranking points.

The specialized chairs that the athletes use cost upwards of $3500. They have canted wheels for stability and allow for rapid change of direction. The small wheels in front and behind the chair help prevent them from tipping.

Competition was fierce during the matches where opponents were vying not only for points, but for cash and merchandise prizes as well.

Taking first place in the open singles was Canada's #2 ranked Phil Rowe. Rowe beat out #1 ranked Canadian female champ Yuka Chokyu. Chris Nichols took third spot, while Victoria resident Bernice Wong took fourth.

The tournament was sponsored by the Victoria Wheelchair Sports Club.

Parkland Tennis

The Parkland tennis team competed in their third match of the season against Glen Lyon Norfolk School.

Travis Allan lost his first singles match of the season to a very talented GLNS player by a 6-2 score. Chelsea Lott lost her singles match by a 6-3 score. Allan and Lott rebounded as they paired up in the mixed doubles to win 6-4, remaining undefeated in mixed doubles for the season.

The Parkland Boy's doubles fared well with Lenny Allan and Tatsia Kato winning handily over the GLNS A team by a 6-2 score.

Sarah Woods and Aya Kikukawa lost 6-3 to the GLNS A team. Woods then partnered with Natalie Tran to win in a tie breaker over the GLNS B team.

Brett Noesgaard and Nat-suki Oshiro lost 6-2 to the GLNS A team.

Noesgaard and Melissa Sandsmark were up five games to three on the GLNS B team when GLNS fought back to bring the match to a tie breaker. The lead see-sawed back and forth, until GLNS rallied to win the tie breaker 7-5. With this victory, GLNS won six matches to five in a really exciting barn burner.

Parkland plays against Reynolds Secondary today from 3:30 to 6 p.m. at the Panorama Recreation Centre.

PenTrack season opener

Bridging the spring and winter seasons, Peninsula Track Club's Jocelyn Connelly [13] and sister Caitlin [10] brought back both track and cross-country trophies from Nanaimo this weekend.

The final results from the Vancouver Island Athletic Association Cross-Country Series were announced during the opening track meet of the season, and Jocelyn was declared the Girls 13 overall winner, while Caitlin took the second place trophy in her age category.

Not content to rest on their winter laurels, Caitlin went out and added a win in the 1500M [6:07.] to her collection, while Jocelyn took the 1500 Race Walk [10:01.28]. Caitlin also took silver in the 800M [2:59.8] and the High Jump [1.00m] together with a bronze in the 400g Javelin throw [8.42m].

Not to be out done in the Club's "family stakes", Christine Ireland [11] pulled in a silver in her age class in the triple jump [7.44m] and a bronze in the 200M Hurdles [38.4], while brother Jason [13] opened his season with a second place 1.3m performance in the High Jump, and a third place finish in the Triple Jump [8.15m].

Douglas Bissett [13] was also a winner with his 11:33.14, 1500M Race Walk victory, while Matthew Lott [14] brought back two bronzes, one in the High Jump [1.55m] and the other for the 4kg Hammer Throw [22.35m]. Danny Moller [11], in his first season with the Club, opened up with a pleasing second place in his Triple Jump event [7.19m].

North Saanich middle school students are on the run

From dusk to dawn teens run more than 7000 kms to raise funds for their school

What is that saying about red sky in the morning? The dawn of April 1 was a beautiful shade of crimson as the North Saanich middle school Dawn to Dusk relay got underway at the Parkland track. At 7 a.m. over 80 students started what was to be the first of many laps around the track in order to raise money for the development of the school's playing fields. By midmorning the rain and cold wind made the going a little bit tougher, but the students persevered. Hour after hour, for the next 12 hours, another relay of 80 students arrived to continue the marathon.

The idea of a relay, originally proposed as a fund raiser by parent Martin Pepper, evolved into a dawn to dusk event that involved the efforts of the students, parents, and staff of North Saanich middle school. The success of the day was due in large part to the welcome provided by the Parkland students who gave their facilities and their encouragement to the younger students. There was also very generous support from the community, in particular Sidney Super Foods, Thrifty Foods, Sidney Subway and Water Pure and Simple who provided a variety of nutritious snacks for the runners throughout the day. Three deliveries from Panago Pizza and the tunes from the HOT103 radio station brought up the energy levels as the kids carried on with their goal of seeing if their class could make the most number of laps.

This event generated a tremendous level of support from the parents of North Saanich, who helped throughout the day organizing the runners, counting the laps, and distributing the food. Coffee from Alexanders, as well as the shelter provided by tents donated by Thrifty Foods and Island Farms, certainly helped this part of the relay go smoothly. Once again the staff from the school played a vital role in keeping the students involved and enthusiastic. A special thank you to school secretary Sue Pritchard for keeping track of all the pledges, and to paramedic Mike McGregor for reassuring the occasional student that blisters and exercise sometimes go together.

Braving rain, cold wind and blistered feet, North Saanich middle school students, staff and parents participated in a 12-hour relay to raise money to improve the school's playing fields. Participants circled the track at Parkland school more than 17,000 times, far exceeding organizers expectations.

The greatest admiration must go to the students of North Saanich middle school, who ran, jogged, walked, conga-lined and leapfrogged in excess of 7000 km from dawn to dusk on April 1.

As Principal Ray Rogers counted down the final seconds of the 12 hours, and chief organizer Jane Wynne ran her victory lap around the track, the sun shone through in the western sky. ... What is that saying about red sky at night?

TOWN OF SIDNEY IMMEDIATE & URGENT NOTICE OF WATER USE RESTRICTIONS

Effective April 2nd, the following water restrictions apply:

No person shall:

- water lawns at any time;
- use a hose to wash exterior building surfaces, parking lots, driveways or sidewalks;
- use decorative fountains that do not use re-circulated water;
- water trees/shrubs/flowers/vegetables/ except by hand using a hose with a spring-loaded shut-off nozzle, or hand-held container;
- wash a vehicle or boat except by using a hand-held container or hose equipped with a spring loaded shut-off nozzle; and
- fill existing residential swimming pools, wading pools or hot tubs.

The Capital Region and Sidney faces a severe water shortage. The Sooke reservoir, which is normally full at this time, is only 65% full. If water is not conserved, greater problems will occur for all residents later in the summer.

Sidney is one of the three municipalities in the CRD region which has opted to enforce water restrictions using its own staff, not CRD staff. The Town wants to work with its residents rather than have strangers deal with local issues.

The Town requests that all residents disarm their sprinkler systems immediately.

BOATERS are requested to fill their water tanks prior to returning to Sidney docks and marinas.

Town staff will be on water patrol around the clock.

Residents are advised that should they be observed using water outside the water restrictions listed above an additional user fee will be applied to their water bills for every occurrence, as per the following:

Stage 1 Restriction	Stage 2 Restriction	Stage 3 Restriction
$50.00 Fee per 24 hr.	$75 Fee per 24 hr.	$100.00 Fee per 24 hr.

If you have any questions or comments, please contact the Town Engineering Department at 656-4502.

The Town appreciates your COOPERATION so that WATER IS CONSERVED

Access awareness week

Sidney is known around the province and across Canada for its accessibility. "It didn't just happen," says John Reid, chair of Sidney's Advisory Committee for Persons with Disability. "This committee has been working with the Town to improve access and raise awareness since its inception in 1993, and continues with the ninth consecutive Access Awareness Fair."

Access Awareness Week kickoff on May 26 will again be held as a day-long event, from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. in Beacon Plaza Mall. The theme for the Fair, Focus 2001, will feature many programs, community resources and will begin the Community Week in conjunction with SAIBR (Sidney-Anacortes International Boat Race).

Many groups will be represented: Riding for the Disabled, Stroke Recovery group, White Cane Club, Transportation issues with BC Transit, Scooter Safety with the Red Cross, Peninsula Seniors Hotline, Neighbourhood Emergency Preparedness Program, Community Response Network, Disabled Sailing Association, Recreation Commissions, SAIBR and information on the recent as well as ongoing town projects.

It's free, and everyone is welcome. The first 50 persons can receive a whistle key-chain donated by Scott Plastics — useful for a person with a disability, or a child, who may need to summons help.

Presentations of the awards for this year to businesses who have made the community more accessible will be made at noon.

For more information, call John Reid at 655-3627.

AUCTION ADVANTAGE 2001

SAVE UP TO 50% ON NEARLY $350,000 WORTH OF ITEMS!

WHAT IS AUCTION ADVANTAGE?

It's Greater Victoria's biggest weekly newspaper silent auction ever and it's happening right here in Victoria. For a period of eight consecutive days, the readers of News Group papers can bid on all sorts of great merchandise and services... and have the chance to save some real dollars at the same time. With hundreds of items worth over $300,000 up for grabs, it's going to be fun and exciting!

HOW DOES IT WORK?

Rather than a live auction like you're probably used to, Auction Advantage is a silent auction. Instead of an auctioneer taking bids, there is an Auction Trust Committee that oversees the whole bidding process. Instead of a number of people trying to outbid each other one after another, people submit their Maximum Silent Bid and the Auction Trust Committee acts on their behalf and submits bids for them according to a predetermined set of rules. (Pick up a copy of the rules at News Group, 818 Broughton St. or go to www.vicnews.com). The benefit of this type of auction is not having to constantly submit one bid after another when you are outbid and, consequently, not having to follow the auction minute by minute as it unfolds. (In an eight-day auction, that would be very time consuming) When the auction is finished, the person who has submitted the highest bid will buy the item for $10 over the second-place bid. On items $20,000 and over, that will be $100.00.

ARE THESE ALL NEW ITEMS?

Yes! All items and services in Auction Advantage are brand new and come with applicable warranties, just as if you purchased the item direct from a retailer. The selling prices listed throughout this program reflect actual retail prices of their respective items.

WHEN DOES THE AUCTION TAKE PLACE?

Auction Advantage commences at 9:00 a.m. on October 27, 2001, and concludes at 5:00 p.m. on Nov. 3, 2001. However, there are only certain times that bids will be accepted by phone.

WHY PARTICIPATE?

Besides the fact that you may never again have the opportunity to buy items like the ones we're featuring at such unheard of savings, bidding is competitive, exciting and fun!

WHO IS ELIGIBLE TO PARTICIPATE?

Bidding is open to any residents of the Greater Victoria area 18 years of age or over. Employees of Vancouver Island News Group and their immediate families are ineligible to participate. Employees of participating business may bid, but not on items that are provided by their respective companies.

HOW DO I PARTICIPATE?

Bid early and bid wisely. Here's how: Find an item (or two or more) that catches your eye. Maybe it's something you need, maybe it's something you want for yourself or maybe as a gift for someone else.

Visit or contact the participating businesses to view or to learn more about the item(s) you will be bidding on.

Pick your own deal. You decide how much you're willing to spend on the item. Remember, if you win the auction, you are obligated to buy the item for the winning bid amount, and all sales are final.

ITEM: 419, 420

DOES MY BID INCLUDE TAX?

No.

Successful bidders will be responsible for all applicable taxes on the items they purchase at their winning bid.

Note: There are special rules for bidding on vehicles. Credit card payments for vehicles will not be accepted.

WHAT IF I SEE MULTIPLE ITEM NUMBERS FOR ONE ITEM?

If you see in the 'Product Profile' ad two (2) item numbers for example, this means that there are 2 of that same product up for auction. You will need to choose one item number that you want to bid on and then call in or submit your bid electronically. In this example there are two (2) - each valued at $2,555.00. You can bid on any one or more of the two. Then follow the results as you normally would in your News Group community newspaper or at www.vicnews.com.

HOW DO I KEEP TRACK OF THE AUCTION?

Follow the day-to-day bidding on line at www.vicnews.com. Each update will consist of item number and description, actual selling price, current bid value, ID code of the high bidder and reserve status. If you notice that you are outbid, that is to say the published bid level is higher than your Maximum Secret Bid, you might want to consider submitting a higher Maximum Secret Bid to still try and win that auction.

WHAT IS THE ID CODE?

The published ID code of a bidder is the way to protect the identity of a high bidder on an auction item while still letting that bidder know their status. The ID code consists of the initials of the bidder and the last three digits of that bidder's phone number.

WHAT IS RESERVE STATUS?

Reserve status tells you whether or not the reserve price for an item has been met. Each item has a reserve price. In the event that there are no bids for an item equal or greater than this price when the auction ends, the item may not be sold to the high bidder. Vehicles have a higher maximum reserve price. The reserve prices are 50% of the actual regular retail price of the items. The reserve prices are fixed values that have been set by the Auction Trust Committee and will not be altered after bidding is underway. Reserve status may have one of two values:

Reserve not yet met: The value of the highest bid is less than the reserve amount.

Reserve met, item will sell: The value of the highest bid is at least the reserve amount. The item will be sold. Please note that any Maximum Secret Bid placed which exceeds the reserve will automatically be placed by the Auction Trust Committee at the reserve price.

WHAT HAPPENS IF I'M THE WINNING BIDDER?

The Auction Trust Committee will contact you by phone within 5 business days upon closing of the auction if your bid is the winning bid for any given item at the end of the auction.

HOW DO I PAY FOR THE ITEM(S) I HAVE PURCHASED IN THE AUCTION?

Winning bid amounts may be paid in full to News Group Weekend Edition. You may pay by cash, certified cheque, money order, VISA, Master Card or Debit Card. (Note: vehicle auction winners will be advised at time of contact of special payment procedures for their purchases.)

NEWS GROUP

AUCTION ADVANTAGE 2001

BIDDING IS EASY AS...

1

Determine the maximum amount you are willing to pay for the item you are bidding on. That will be your Maximum Secret Bid. Be sure you know the item Number and Description of the item you are bidding on as well. Your Maximum Secret Bid may not necessarily be the price you pay if you are the successful bidder (you may pay less, never more). However, choose a maximum carefully as you won't be able to reduce it later and you'll be legally bound to pay that price if it is the winning bid.

If you are bidding online fill out your name in full, your address, your age and your home and work phone number in the appropriate fields. After you have become a registered bidder then follow the online instructions. If bidding by telephone, have the above information on hand.

You must include all information.

Forms with missing information are not valid and will be rejected without notice.

Submit your bid anytime between 9 a.m. Saturday, October 27, 2001 and 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 3, 2001. Phone in your bid between the hours of 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends. Under no circumstances will bids be accepted after 5 p.m. on the auction's final day, Saturday, Nov. 3, 2001.

Bids will ONLY be accepted by phone or online.

By Phone: Call the Auction Advantage Bid Line at (250) 480-3225 beginning at 9:00 a.m., Oct. 27, 2001.

Via our Website: www.vicnews.com

All bids received outside the regular auction hours will be processed the following auction day. Under no circumstances will bids be received after 5 p.m. on Saturday, November 3, 2001.
Current high bid information will be available at www.vicnews.com and in our weekly report in News Group newspapers. Auction standings will be published weekly for the duration of the Auction in News Group community newspapers.
Good Luck!

WHY A MAXIMUM SECRET BID?

Because Auction Advantage is not a live auction, you cannot react instantly to someone bidding against you on the same item. For this reason we are using a system called Proxy Bidding. Under Proxy Bidding, you tell our Auction Trust Committee the most you are willing to pay for an item. This is your Maximum Secret Bid and is known only by you and the Auction Trust Committee. The Committee then places a bid on your behalf at the lowest level possible to make you the high bidder for the item. If you are outbid, the Auction Trust Committee will raise your bid by ten dollar* increments until you are again the high bidder or until your Maximum Secret Bid is reached. Your bid will not exceed your Maximum Secret Bid unless you submit another form with a higher maximum. *Check listing in News Group newspapers each week for the current bid level for your item. If it is below your secret maximum, you remain the highest bidder. If it exceeds your maximum, it is time for you to submit a higher bid, should you choose to pursue the purchase of the item. By using a Maximum Secret Bid, you save yourself the trouble of calling or submitting via email when somebody outbids you. As a result, you reduce the chances of being outbid at the last minute before the auction ends.

*items over $20,000 will be in $100 increments.

EXAMPLE OF BIDDING PROCESS

1. Bidding for an item starts at $500.
2. Bidder A determines that he is willing to pay $750 for that item and therefore submits a Maximum Secret Bid of $750 for that item.
3. The Auction Trust Committee enters a bid of $500 (the opening bid) on behalf of bidder A, which is the minimum needed to make bidder A the highest bidder.
4. You determine that you are willing to pay $1000 for the same item, therefore, you submit a Maximum Secret Bid of $1000 for that item.
5. The Auction Trust Committee enters a bid for $760 on your behalf, which is the minimum amount to make you the highest bidder.
6. The auction ends.
7. You are the winner. You purchase the item for $760, plus applicable taxes.
